

BIRTHDAY PARTY FOR PRESIDENT HERE ON JAN. 30

Seventy Per Cent of Proceeds Will Be Used in Adams County.

ARRANGE FOR DANCE, CARDS

Gettysburg and Adams county will join in the nation-wide observance of President Franklin Delano Roosevelt's birthday, January 30, by holding its own "President's Birthday Party," in the Hotel Gettysburg, using the main dining room, lobby and annex.

This decision was reached at a meeting of the general committee, Friday evening, in the parlors of the Hotel Gettysburg. M. D. DeTar, chairman of the general committee, presided. Sixteen members were present, with practically every section of the county represented.

A nominal charge will be made for the Birthday Party, but an innovation is introduced into this year's observance. Seventy per cent of the entire proceeds will remain in Gettysburg and Adams county for the care and cure of infantile paralysis victims and thirty per cent will be sent to President Roosevelt for presentation to his research council on the nation-wide care and cure of the drenched disease.

Informal Affair
The Adams county committee decided to hold a dance and card party on the night of January 30. General admission tickets will be sold for one dollar. Patron tickets will be sold for three dollars. These prices will include dancing or card playing. Those who plan to play cards are urged to notify those from whom they purchase tickets of their intention in order that the committee on arrangements may make the necessary plans.

The entire affair will be strictly informal.

The committee has also consented to permit those who wish to make up their own tables for bridge, "500" or any other card game to do so. However, those doing so must notify the committee, so that tables may be reserved.

Tickets will be placed on sale throughout the county early next week. Philip R. Bieke is chairman of the ticket committee. Tickets will be sent to representatives in each community throughout the county and a general appeal is being made to local and county residents to purchase at least one ticket. Each ticket is for one couple.

Other tickets will be placed on sale at conveniently located stores throughout the county, within easy reach of all, so that in event some persons are not approached they may secure tickets from these places.

Every person affiliated with the birthday party is donating his or her services without charge and it is the intention of the committee to conduct the party without cost or at the minimum expense. Henry M. Scharf has donated the facilities of the Hotel Gettysburg.

Chairman DeTar today announced his committee on arrangements for the party:

George W. Bochner, chairman; John W. Brehm, Charles H. Huber, Jr., Mrs. J. Donald Swope, Miss Edna Eicholtz, Mrs. R. C. Walton, Mrs. R. J. Wetzel, Miss Mary Ramner and Mrs. Henry T. Bream.

Professor Lloyd C. Keefeauver was named chairman of the committee in charge of the sale of the patrons' tickets.

Dr. S. W. Frost, of Arendtsville, was appointed treasurer of the committee.

Further details of the President's Birthday Party will be announced from time to time through these columns.

LAWYERS MATCH MOVE-FOR-MOVE IN LINDY CASE

Defense and Prosecution Withdraw to Prepare for Next Week's Work.

FINGER PRINTS BEING HINTED

New York, Jan. 5 (AP)—Edward J. Reilly, chief defense counsel for Bruno Richard Hauptmann, this afternoon said that next Thursday, in Flemington, New Jersey, court he will name four persons and charge them with the kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby.

"They are two men and two women," Reilly said.

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 5 (AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann's prosecution and defense matched move for move today, calling witnesses in secret sessions to reinforce their contentions that he did not commit the Lindbergh murder.

Both legal staffs withdrew from Flemington for the week-end recess in Hauptmann's trial for life, the prosecution to Trenton and the defense to New York, to match wits in a game centering on the Lindbergh ransom.

The state summoned several federal agents, the crack operatives who tracked down the ransom money and who will be major witnesses, for examination.

Attorney Edward J. Reilly, chief of defense, said "I am calling a conference of my handwriting experts in my office in Brooklyn. We are going to prepare our case with regard to the ransom notes."

Hauptmann Aroused
These strategic moves followed three days of swiftly moving drama, set in the 18th century Hunterdon county courtroom during which Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh testified firmly to his belief that Hauptmann kidnapped his child and took his $50,000 ransom.

Hauptmann, aroused by the boyish aviator's identification of his voice as that of the ransom reaper, but strangely unmoved by the accusation of the kidnapping, settled back in his cell to his old stoic calm.

The state, meanwhile, disclosed the angle of attack it will pursue Monday when it resumes its chronological presentation of the story of the Lindbergh kidnapping and slaying.

Miss Betty Gow, Scotch nurse of the slain infant, was listed as the first witness the state will call when Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard reconvenes court for the second week of the trial.

Finger Prints
The Hopewell police chief, Harry Wolff, who arrived at the Lindbergh Soudland mountain estate soon after the kidnapping was discovered, probably will follow her. The first state trooper to reach the estate after the alarm, Corporal Harry Wolfe, also has been ordered to be (Continued on Page Two)

Charge Student With Harboring "Ferocious" Dog

An information charging Harry Shimer, a student at Gettysburg college, with harboring a "ferocious and dangerous dog" was laid before Justice of the Peace John C. Shealer after the animal is alleged to have severely bitten the left thumb of Hazel Buohl, 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Earl Buohl, 132 East Water street, in center square, Friday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock.

The Buohl child was roller skating around center square, accompanied by a white Spitz dog.

Shimer's dog, a police dog, first lunged at the Buohl girl's left hand and then bit the child's pet Spitz, it is alleged.

The girl was taken to the office of Dr. H. M. Hartman, Chambersburg street, who dressed the wound. The child is said to have spent a restless night and this morning her left hand was reported considerably swollen.

Interesting Volume on Thaddeus Stevens on Sale

An interesting and complete history of the life of Thaddeus Stevens, a former resident of Gettysburg, founder of the Pennsylvania public school system, noted attorney-at-law and educator, has just come from the press in a 675 page book, handsomely bound and illustrated. The book was written by Thomas Frederick Woodley.

Woodley, who spent considerable time in Gettysburg while preparing his manuscript, expresses his appreciation, in the preface to the book, to those who assisted him, including Judge Donald P. McPherson and John D. Keith, Esq., "for helpful suggestions in the matter of research."

Thaddeus Stevens resided in the old Horner residence, on the site of what is now Brehm's tailor shop, Chambersburg street. He was an aggressive, domineering individual and his likes and dislikes were finely drawn.

He waged bitter campaigns for what he believed to be right, notably his struggle for a public school system.

300 GUARANTEE FOR INAUGURAL TRAIN IS NEAR

More Than Half of Required Reservations Made for Local Special.

LAST DAY SET FOR JANUARY 12

More than half of the required 300 reservations for the special train for Adams county's delegation to the inauguration of Governor-elect George H. Earle in Harrisburg, January 15, have been made, Louis W. Wagaman, clerk to the county commissioners, to whom ticket-sellers are reporting, announced today.

Mr. Wagaman today said all persons selling tickets for the special train must make their returns to him on or before 2 o'clock next Saturday afternoon. All unsold tickets must be returned to Mr. Wagaman at that time.

The commissioners' clerk said the Adams county special will leave here at 9 o'clock from the Reading passenger station, North Washington street, and will stop at all stations in the county to take on passengers.

Good at All Points
Mr. Wagaman pointed out that while the advance tickets specify that the tickets must be redeemed at the Reading station here, the tickets may be exchanged for regular passenger tickets at any ticket office along the line.

"The tickets are somewhat misleading," Mr. Wagaman said, "because they set forth that the tickets must be redeemed in Gettysburg on January 15. I have been informed by N. B. Schnurman, local agent for the Reading company, that the tickets will be accepted for the regular $1 fare that day at any ticket office along the line, or may be exchanged with the conductor on the train in the event there is no agent at some of the stops."

The special train will stop at the Mulberry street bridge, Harrisburg, just two blocks from the capitol where the new governor will take his oath of office at noon. Immediately after the induction, the parade will be held.

To Engage Band
A band will be engaged to accompany the Adams county delegation on the special train, and will play for the countians in the parade.

A suitable banner designating the Adams county delegation is being prepared.

The special train will leave Harrisburg at 5 o'clock.

ASKS CHURCHES TO INAUGURATE WEEK OF PRAYER

Local Observance of World-wide Movement Will Begin On Monday.

NATIONAL BODY GIVES STATEMENT

The Week of Prayer services, which will be held in the several Protestant churches of Gettysburg for six nights, beginning Monday, are sponsored by the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

Through its department of evangelism, the council "calls upon the churches and disciples of Christ everywhere to unite in a 'Week of Prayer' during the first days of the New Year."

A daily devotional series, presented by the national church organization, "will prove helpful," it is believed by the council, "to those who desire to unite in a fellowship of prayer. Throughout the world a great company of Christians will be in prayer at the same time as a result of the furthering of the Universal Week of Prayer by the World's Evangelical Alliance."

Topics for Prayer
The topics for prayer presented by the council are a development of the theme, "Our Undeveloped Spiritual Resources." "In their scope," the statement by the council continues, "they center about the meaning of the Christian Gospel for the individual and social life. Men have often argued together and prayed apart. When Christians pray together, fellowship is enriched. Prayer changes things."

"Believers in prayer are urged to gather during the period of January 6-11 in united services, to present their common petitions to our Heavenly Father."

Grave Problems
"Grave problems face the nation and church. The almost universal experience of distress which has fallen upon our world during the last five years ought to prompt all Christian people most earnestly to discover the will of God. Prayer helps us to discover His will. The early disciples were conscious of an (Continued on Page Two)

FOUR BILLION FOR MORE JOBS

Roosevelt Reported To Be Ready to Ask Congress for Huge Appropriation.

(Copyright, 1935, by A. P.)

Washington, Jan. 5 (AP).—President Roosevelt intends to ask congress, an authoritative source said today, to provide $4,000,000,000 for what he terms "the American plan" to "quit this business of relief" and put 3,500,000 unemployed to work.

This, as outlined by persons prominent on Capitol Hill, would be the work relief figure for the fiscal year beginning July 1, though it would not all be spent if reviving business absorbed enough of the jobs.

For ordinary government running expenditures in the year it was indicated about $4,000,000,000 more would be required, thus the budget would be about eight billion dollars.

President Roosevelt outlined to congressional leaders Friday night a plan to extend about $880,000,000 to tide the relief efforts over the transition period from the "dole" to "jobs-for-all." This sum is expected to come, at least in large part, from funds previously appropriated.

6 CONVICTED OF STATION KILLING

Find Defendants Guilty of Trying to Liberate Prisoner From Agents.

Kansas City, Kan., Jan. 5 (AP).—The sextet which the government charges set the stage for the Kansas City Union station massacre were convicted Friday night of conspiracy to liberate Frank Nash from federal officers as the department of justice moved forward in its announced plan to bring every living participant to justice.

Sobs, curses and the stony silence of two gamblers who lost greeted the verdict in the court of Federal Judge Merrill E. Otis.

Six Are Convicted

Convicted were Richard Tallman Galatas, Hot Springs (Ark.) gambler; Mrs. Betty Galatas, his wife; Herber Farmer, Joplin (Mo.) farmer-gambler; Esther Farmer, his wife; Louis (Doc) Stacci, Chicago night club operator, and Frank B. (Fritz) Mulloy, Kansas City night club operator.

The charge, "conspiracy to liberate a prisoner in the custody of the attorney-general, one Frank Nash, June 17, 1933," carries a maximum penalty of two years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Mrs. Farmer, whose devoted attention to her deaf husband marked the four-day trial, wept uncontrollably as the verdict was read.

Farmer, unable to hear the verdict, watched her face anxiously.

"Which of us was it?" he asked as she started to weep.

"Both," she sobbed loudly into his ear, apparently unable to write a note—their usual method of communication.

Mrs. Galatas gasped, but quickly regained her composure.

Stacci swore and then wept. Mulloy handed his overcoat to his wife with the remark:

"Here take this. I won't need it."

Galatas did not change expression.

The sextet, with Mrs. Vivian Mathis, who pleaded guilty, were sentenced by Judge Otis at 9:30 a. m. today. Defense attorneys indicated their plan to appeal.

Next Adam Richetti, held in jail here on federal charges of conspiracy and motor-car theft, is to go on trial.

W. W. Graves, Jr., prosecuting attorney, disclosed today he had quashed a state murder warrant charging that Richetti was one of the machine-gunners who killed Nash, an escaped train robber, and four officers who were returning him to Leavenworth prison. He indicated, however, he would make use of the government's evidence to reopen the case.

Defense Hints It Will Link 'Jafsie' With Lindy Servants

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 5 (AP).—

Edward J. Reilly, chief defense counsel in the kidnapping-murder trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, hinted Friday night he would attempt to show a connection between Dr. John F. Condon, ransom intermediary, and the butler and housekeeper in the Lindbergh household.

Following upon a day of bitter warfare between prosecution and defense, Reilly said at adjournment: "I'll give you a hint as to what the future holds."

Points To Mrs. Whateley

"The most important question of the defense case Friday was asked when I cross-examined Elsie Whateley, the wife of the Lindbergh butler.

The question was: "Didn't your husband and you know Dr. Condon at New Rochelle in 1931?"

Mrs. Whateley's reply was, "No, we did not."

Whateley, the butler, is dead.

Obviously Odd, He Says

Nevertheless, Reilly has indicated that he intends to bring to life the long discarded clues that were attached to the names of the Lindbergh household help early in the investigation of the murder and kidnapping.

"It is obviously odd," Reilly declared, "that the mysterious Violet Sharpe commits suicide; that Whateley gets a stomach ache and dies suddenly; that Mrs. Whateley goes to England shortly after Betty Gow leaves for Scotland. All this, shortly after the Lindbergh baby disappeared.

Many Disconnected Angles

"There are a great many disconnected angles in the case which we propose to compose into a clear account of the Lindbergh mystery. When we are finished, I believe it will show that Hauptmann is not guilty of the charges the state has preferred against him."

Reilly was leaving Friday night for New York.

"I'm calling a conference of my handwriting experts in my office in Brooklyn today. We are going to prepare our case with regard to the ransom notes," he said.

Asked how many handwriting experts he intended producing in court, Reilly replied, "as many as I can get to work for nothing."

Handwriting Experts Volunteer

He said several had already agreed to appear from "all parts of the country and abroad."

One expert will come from Germany to testify, Reilly added. This man was said by Reilly to have been a judge of Teutonic chirography for many years.

The attorney also asserted he was "happy" because he soon will have a chance to cross-examine Miss Gow, the nurse of the slain baby.

Sure nurse "Will Tell Truth"

"She'll tell the truth, I feel sure," he said, "and explain a great number of things."

Mrs. Hauptmann, who engaged Reilly to defend her husband, left court smiling Friday. Her features, wreathed in broad grins, contrasted sharply with her demeanor of the morning session, when Lindbergh's identification of Hauptmann's voice had shaken her.

"I am most happy," she remarked. "I am beginning to have a feeling that everything will come out all right. I feel that they won't do anything to an innocent man."

Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr.'s Former Wife Weds 3rd Time

Philadelphia, Jan. 5. — The six-month-old marriage of Mrs. Mary Weir Logan Vanderbilt, former wife of Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., to Thomas B. Brett, performed June 20 at an Episcopal church at Concord, New Hampshire, was revealed Friday.

"We decided quite suddenly to get married," Mrs. Brett said yesterday at her home, 33 Sutton Place, New York, when asked to confirm reports she had embarked on a third matrimonial venture.

"We spent the summer in a resort in Vermont and came to New York in the fall. We are going to continue to live here, where my husband is engaged in the airplane manufacturing business."

Mrs. Brett's first husband was Waldo Hancock Logan, Chicago and Los Angeles broker, and by that marriage she has a 10-year-old daughter, Joan Logan, who accompanied Mrs. Brett on the wedding trip to Concord.

Her marriage to Vanderbilt, the former newspaper publisher, ended August 4, 1931, when Mrs. Brett obtained a divorce in Reno. During the period she and Vanderbilt were residents of Nevada, her husband was reported to have been incensed by the attention Peter Arno, the cartoonist, was alleged to have been paying to Mrs. Brett.

For several months following the divorce, Mrs. Brett lived in Cambodia Court, St. David's and was arrested last April on a charge of permitting vicious dogs to run at large and "maintaining a public nuisance."

The complaint was against her scotties and the matter ended with Mrs. Brett being ordered to keep the dogs confined and to pay the cost of the prosecution, $11.25.

$10,000,000 'Go' Signal Turned By PWA on Eve of Long Speech

Washington, Jan. 5 (AP).—Wiping one difference with Huey Long off its slate, the Roosevelt administration has taken the "held-up" sign off nearly $10,000,000 of Louisiana public works projects.

This was disclosed by public works administration officials Friday almost on the eve of Long's threatened speech bringing the matter before the senate.

All public works projects in Louisiana on which construction had not begun by November 15 were halted while PWA attorneys studied an act declaring a moratorium on all debts except those owed municipalities, the state and the federal government.

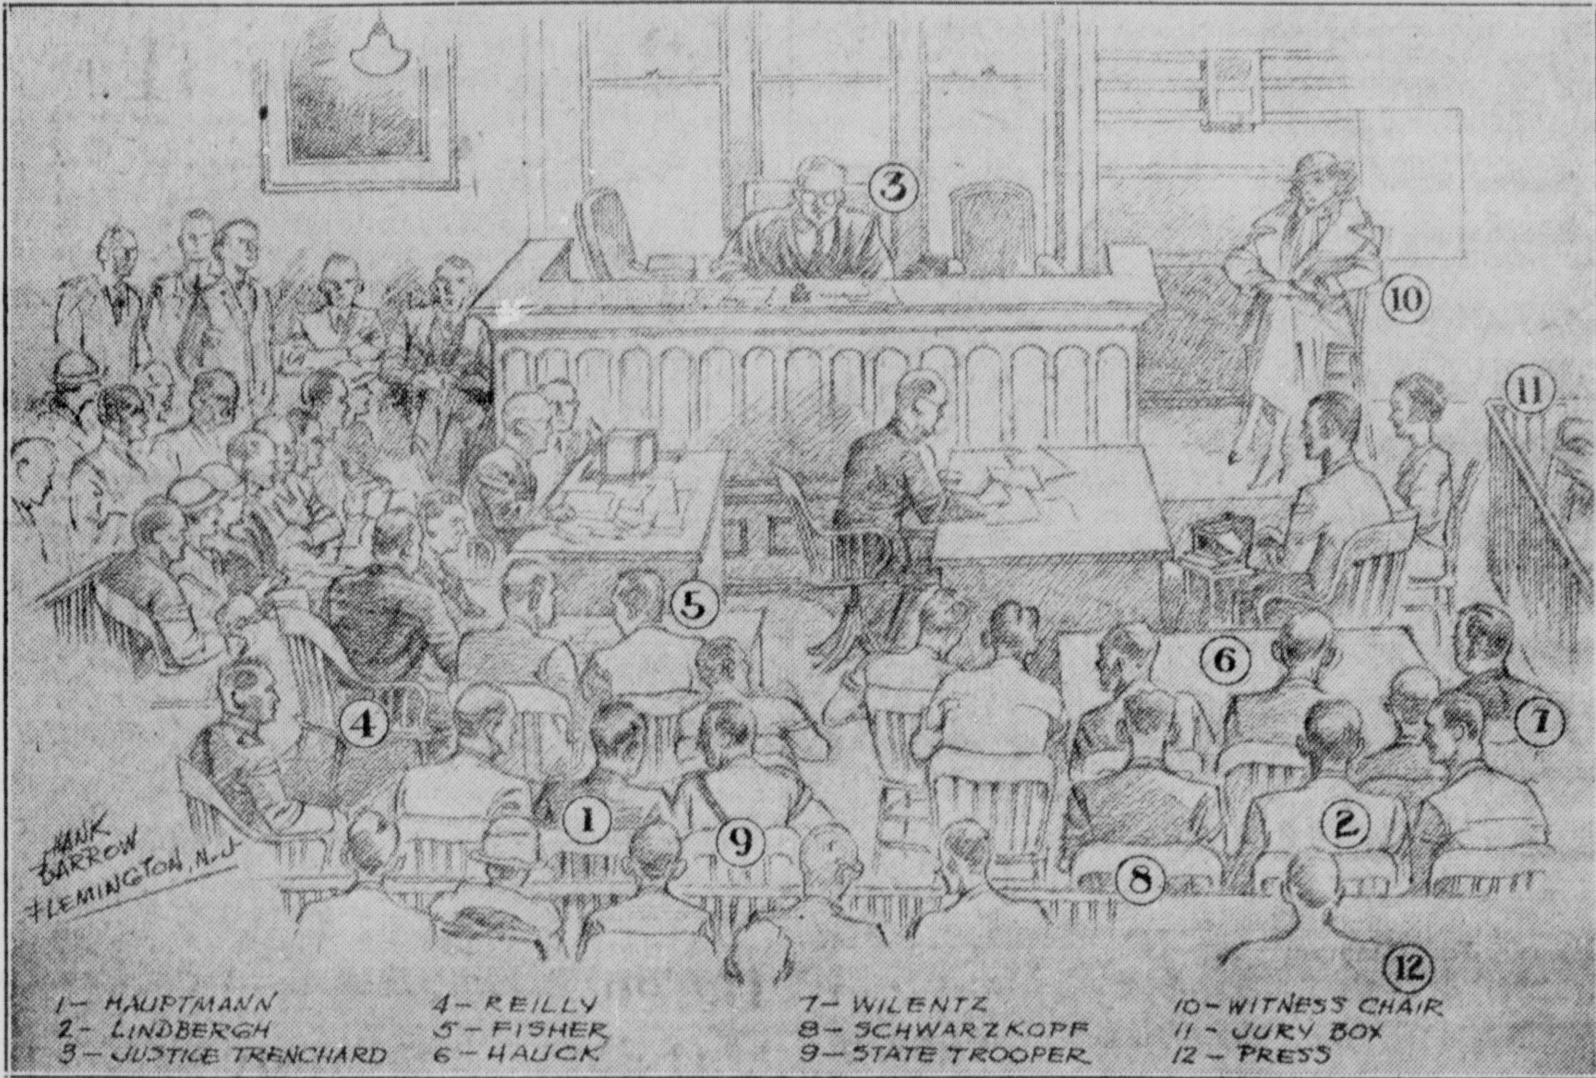

They reported the law would not jeopardize municipal bonds bought by PWA. But PWA has not reached a decision on its $1,700,000 allotments for New Orleans sewer improvements, pending examination of another law passed by the Long-dominated legislature at its November special session.

This gave Long control over the New Orleans sewage and water board.

Work on ten projects involving $867,400 went on because they already had been started on November 15.

Let those men go.

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams
SUPERIOR PEOPLE

MOST of us are hero worshippers to a greater or lesser degree. The very example of a hero spurs us on. Often we build them, in our imagination, greater than they are. But that fact harms neither them nor us.

But often the disappointment comes when we are privileged to meet one of these heroes face to face. Why! he seems like anyone else, barring, perhaps, some distinguishing trait of speech or personality. Just so. Superior people are like anyone else—except when their superior moments come and they produce the thing that has marked their genius.

Most of our heroes would attract little or no attention at all should they parade upon a street where they are totally unknown—but let them be cloistered in their secret haunts, with their souls bubbling in feeling and vision—and behold their masterpieces are born and spread out for the world of men to love and admire.

Superior people are always latently great. I wonder if we would praise and love Shakespeare were he to be contemporary with us? Were we to meet him face to face upon the street as one of our daily figures?

How many times we meet famous people and fail to understand why they have become famous. We would understand if we could but be with them during their moments of travail, hunger, or dire disappointment.
Superior people do not advertise their character or their worth. Usually they are the most modest of folks. That is one reason why they are so superior. The make-believe is the one who creates noise.

To be superior, however, one does not have to be famous or talked about. Great emergencies, and sudden catastrophies always bring out superior people. Their caliber then rises to the occasion.

Courage under great privation and disappointment, mastering the seemingly trivial in life, and daily cultivating an inward control, will school any man or woman to be superior when superiority counts.

Earle Told He Must Raise
$225,000,000 During Year

Philadelphia, Jan. 4 (AP).—The committee Governor-elect Earle named in November to study the state's financial problems, informed him Friday his administration must raise $225,000,000 through new taxation in order to balance the state's budget for the biennium ending May 31, 1937.

In its report, the committee also told the incoming governor that his administration will have to raise $36,200,000 in actual cash between January 15, the day it takes office, and May 31, the end of the current biennium, in order to prevent a curtailment of normal governmental operations and unemployment relief functions.

See 21 Millions Deficit

The committee headed by Dr.
Luther A. Harr, secretary-designate of banking in the Earle cabinet, estimated that "an actual cash deficit of $21,200,000, exclusive of relief, will exist at the end of the current biennium, May 31, 1935."

This statement contrasts to that contained in Governor Pinchot's farewell message to the legislature on January 1, in which he said the total unappropriated cash balances in all funds on May 31 will be $5-500,851. "If the income and outgo for the current year approximate the estimates."

Working with Doctor Harr in the study and the report were the other members of the committee: Frederick A. Heim, Williamsport banker;
Col. Louis J. Kolb, Philadelphia,

financier, and Dr. Marion K. Mc-Kay, University of Pittsburgh economist.

"The committee," the report said,
"finds that the commonwealth of Pennsylvania faces a most serious financial problem, and unless emergency measures are promptly adopted, the new administration will be unable to meet current payrolls and other obligations."

"The committee estimates," the report added, "that an actual cash deficit of $21,200,000, exclusive of relief will exist at the end of the current biennium, May 31, 1935. On the basis of existing sources of revenue, and if the reductions and economies recommended are carried through, the biennium ending May 31, 1937, will witness an additional deficit of $69,381,893. That means the total deficit at the end of May, 1937, will reach $89,581,893."

Relief Sums Not Included

"This amount does not include any sums for relief. If Pennsylvania must pay the estimated $5-000,000 a month toward relief, that will make a deficit of $15,000,000 additional for the last three months of the current biennium and $120-000,000 additional burden for the next biennium ending May 31, 1937, or a total of $135,000,000 for relief."

"If this sum is added to the deficit mentioned above, it will be seen that the commonwealth faces the possibility of a total deficit of $224-581,893 by the end of the next biennium, May 31, 1937."

Thirty Mothers Picket School,
Keeping 406 Children Outside

Seat Pleasant, Md., Jan. 5 (AP).—

Picketing the Seat Pleasant school because of alleged unsafe condition of the furnace, thirty mothers Friday kept 406 children from attending their classes.

The mothers, under the leadership of Mrs. G. R. Eton, paraded around the school after a workman said the furnace was too hot for him to make repairs Thursday and promised to return Friday when it had cooled down.

Benjamin Freeman, an engineer and a patron of the school, reported recently that a broken safety valve and damper on the furnace was "jeopardizing the lives of the students."

Following protests of the local Parent-Teacher Association to the condition of the furnace, Nicholas Orem, Prince George's county superintendent of schools, said the

IL DUCE KISSES
PREMIER LAVAL

French Statesman in Rome
For Conference Aimed at Future Peace.

(Copyright, 1935, by AP)

Rome, Jan. 5.—A cordial kiss on both cheeks was Benito Mussolini's greeting to Pierre Laval Friday night as the French statesman arrived to end old Franco-Italian animosities.

Thousands massed about the railroad station cheered as Il Duce gave Laval the Fascist salute, clasped his hands strongly and kissed his cheeks.

The warmth of the welcome to the first French foreign minister to visit Rome since the World war augured well, observers believe, for the negotiations intended to settle Franco-Italian differences over their colonial concessions in Africa, guarantee Austria's independence and bulwark the peace of central Europe.

Mussolini Greets Laval

Premier Mussolini, together with most members of the cabinet, the foreign office staff and other Italian notables, arrived at the station five minutes before Laval's train was due.

Long lines of Fascist soldiers and policemen stood guard at the station, determined to prevent any untoward incident, while thousands of spectators gathered outside.

As the visitor's train pulled in on the track reserved for royal trains, Mussolini stepped up to the coach door and greeted Laval as he descended, speaking several words of welcome in French to which Laval replied.

Laval Presents Daughter

The Frenchman then presented his daughter, Jose, who accompanied him to the United States when he went to Washington to negotiate for settlement of the war debts controversy, and the three experts who came with him to aid in the negotiations. Fulvio Survich, under secretary of state, handed Mile, Laval a sheaf of roses, the Duce's present.

The statesmen then walked quickly over a red plush carpet to the reception room reserved for royalty at the side of the station, where automobiles were waiting.
Here they paused for photographs, shook hands again and parted, Laval going to his large downtown hotel to prepare for the first meeting with Mussolini this morning and the elaborate round of public functions arranged for his four-day visit.

TWO CAGE TILTS
MONDAY NIGHTWings and Wolmesdorf and Bream and Plank Versus Sweetland Quintet.

Two fine basketball attractions will be offered local fans Monday evening on the Hotel Gettysburg court when the Wolmesdorf Collegians meet the Fleet-Wings and the Sweetland clashes with Bream and Plank.

Wolmesdorf will bring the strongest combination here ever to represent that club. The addition of Paul Bowman, six feet four-inch center, who formerly played with the Philadelphia Moose in the American league, has made the Berks county champs one of the strongest independent teams in Pennsylvania and who represent a real threat to the Wings' claim as central Pennsylvania titlists.

Hen Thomas, former Bucknell star, is the ace shot on the team and specializes in one-handed shots. Klopp, six feet two-inch forward, is Thomas' running mate and an excellent all around star. Spayd and Horne, guards, are strong defensive players and are given great support by Leiminger and McQuaite, substitutes.

League Game
Probably as much interest is being manifested in the preliminary tilt as in the feature game. Bream and Plank and the Sweetland, probably the strongest teams in the county league, will clash in the opening game. Both teams have won their only league battles and the victor in this game will probably win the first half honors. Due to the intense rivalry between the clubs, Henry Bream was selected as referee.

The garage-men are favorites to win and will have their strongest lineup consisting of G. Bream, Flynn, Maust, Forney, Buehler, Roddy and Ridinger. The Sweetland lineup will be selected from Lightner, McCullough, Rupp, Wermick, Shearer, Geiselman, Klinefelter, Anzenberger and Rummel. The game will start at 7:30 o'clock.

Jellied aspic, to which chopped celery, green peppers and peas have been added, makes a good appetizer when served in small cubes and with lemon quarters.I did not kill Osborne
By VICTOR BRIDGES

SYNOPSIS: At last Nicholas Trench knows who killed John Osborne, the man Nick was acquitted of having killed, himself. It was the husband of Mrs. Gowland, and the husband just has shot himself. But still Nick, with his partners, Molly O'Brien, Jerry Mordant, and Jimmy Fox, do not know where the valuable formula Osborne had stolen is hidden. Mrs. Gowland confesses that her husband shot Osborne because Osborne and she were lovers.

Chapter 44
THE FORMULA

"I don't know how my husband knew about Osborne and me," Mrs. Gowland went on, "unless he may have found a letter which came for me after—after Jack went away. Perhaps he had been watching us all the time."

By a desperate effort she managed to moisten her lips. "My husband went up to London—went up by the train. He was there for two days and when he came back he told me what he had done. At first I didn't believe him, but it was true—oh, my God, it was quite true! I thought he would kill me too."

"Sometimes—once more she buried her face and sobbed brokenly—"Sometimes I wish he had."

"You poor soul!" Molly bent over her and softly touched her hair. "I am so terribly sorry for you. It's dreadful to think what you must have been through."

With an impulsive gesture Mrs. Gowland caught hold of her hands. "Oh, you're good—I don't know who you are, but you're good and kind. No one has ever been kind to me—except him."

"I understand, too," I said, "and I don't blame you. In the least, I am only grateful to you for telling us the truth now."

Jerry stepped forward. "You have cleared up one great injustice, Mrs. Gowland," he said quietly, "but there's someone else you've wronged besides Mr. Trench."

She stared up at him. "Someone else?" she whispered.

He pointed to Molly. "There were some papers which belong to Miss O'Brien in Osborne's safe. He stole them from her father when he was in America. They were taken out of the house on the night that he was murdered."

"Papers!" She sat up with a quick gasp. "Yes—there were papers—a whole packet of them. He took them away to make it look like a robbery."

"What did he do with them?" Jerry rapped out the question like a pistol shot.

"He brought them back here to show me. There was blood on them—Jack's blood. He wanted me to see it."

She rose unsteadily, holding on to the back of the chair. "They're over there, in the bottom drawer of the big chest. He used to take them out every night and look at them. He was mad, I tell you, mad—mad."

Crossing the room in a couple of swift strides, Jerry gave an ineffectual tug at the two handles.

"It's locked!" he exclaimed. "Where's the key?"

She moved slowly towards the sofa, turning back the blanket, bent down over the stiff, sprawling object beneath.

"Here it is," she said.

We watched breathlessly while Jerry wrenched open the drawer. For a moment he knelt there, fumbling amongst its contents; then, suddenly jumping to his feet, he swung round towards us.

In his hand was a loosely wrapped brown paper packet.

"Take a look through these, Molly," he said quietly.

He slipped off the covering as he spoke, and half a dozen stained and crumpled documents tumbled on to the table. The largest and most conspicuous of them consisted of two sheets of blue paper fastened together by a brass clip, and with a quick movement Molly snatched it up from among the others.

"This is it! This is the formula! Father described it to me. He said..."

A low, startled cry rang out through the room, and we all three turned sharply towards the sofa. Mrs. Gowland was standing there, pale and rigid—one hand stretched out toward the open window.

"A face—" she gasped, "out there in the bushes! Look—look!"

I spun round in a flash, but I was just too late. There was a quiver of branches, followed by a suffling rush, amongst the undergrowth, and at the same moment Jerry fired. In the low-ceilinged room the noise of the report was deafening.

"Did you see him, Nick? It was that swine from the Milan!" Springing towards the heart, I grabbed up Gowland's gun and jerked open the breech. There was an unused cartridge in the left barrel.

"Are you sure?" I demanded.

"Quite. I'd know him again anywhere."

I stared out in the shrubbery. "Pity you missed him," I said. "He is off now to tell the others. We shall have the whole gang here in a minute."

"Looks that way," Jerry glanced round calmly, and then walking up to the table, stuffed the remaining papers into his pocket. "Only one thing to do," he continued. "We must make a run for the boat, and trust to luck."

Molly stepped forward. "Can't we take Mrs. Gowland with us?"

The white-faced women shook her head.

"I shall stay here," she said stonily.

Jerry held out the still smoking revolver. "You take this, Nick, and give me the gun. It's no use to you with that shoulder of yours." He flung open the door. "Come along, children—time we were off."

With Molly between us, we hurried along the dark passage and out into the narrow porch. It was only a short distance to the beginning of the path, and clicking forward the catch of his gun, Jerry, who had paused one moment for a quick look up and down, led the way forward across the gravel.

If I live to be a hundred I shall never forget that stretch of moonlit path, or our stumbling run through the muddy and silent farmyard.

All my senses were keyed up to their highest pitch by the deadly and imminent danger that surrounded us, but at the same time, as I gripped my revolver and peered anxiously into the shadows, a wild and uncontrollable elation was throbbing through my heart.

At last the truth was out—at last the black cloud which had hung over me so long was shattered and dispersed. I was now free—to look the world in the face—to marry Molly and take up my life and work where it had been broken off.

The thought sang through my mind like music, and the shrieking of the wind as it whistled across the desolate marsh made a brave and fitting accompaniment.

"We can't rush the last bit—not in this light," Jerry had pulled up again in front of the stile. I'll go first because I know the path. Keep an eye behind you, Nick and if you see any trouble coming, sing out at once."

Ten or twelve yards in the rear, and with frequent backward glances over my shoulder, I followed them along the uneven track. I had a haunting feeling that at any moment half a dozen figures might come bursting through the hedge in hot-foot pursuit, but in the faint moonlight that filtered down through a veil of driving cloud, the long line of black bushes remained silent and unbroken.

All the same I was thankful enough when I at last scrambled up the gorse-clad slope and found myself looking down on the friendly little Seagull as she lay bobbing about at her anchor.

With the wind blowing strongly against the incoming tide the peaceful-looking estuary we had left now presented a very different appearance. What met my eyes was a tossing sea of broken water stretching away to the entrance, where a long, curving swell of white-capped breakers smashed silently against the half-submerged bar.

It was not too encouraging a prospect, and with an uneasy doubt as to how long it would be before we could get away, I hurried down to the dinghy, in which Molly and Jimmy had already taken their places.

"What do you make of it, Jerry?" I asked.

"Not too bad," was the reply. "We can't start just yet, but there'll be plenty of water in another hour." He jerked his head towards the boat. "Tumble in and I'll shove her off. We can get as far as the Seagull, at any rate."

ARENDSVILLE
CAGERS WIN 2Defeat Fairfield Boys and Girls' Teams, at Fairfield, Friday Night.

The Arendtsville vocational school cagers won another double-header Friday evening, defeating the Fairfield high boys' and girls' teams, 31-11, and 52-17, respectively, at Fairfield.

Clearly showing their knowledge of the game, the Arendtsville boys piled up a large lead in the first half despite the valiant efforts of the green but willing Fairfield hoopers. At half time the score was 16-6. The second half was a repetition of the first with Arendtsville holding the upper hand. Hartzell and Donaldson played well for their teams.

The undefeated Arendtsville girls' team won handily over the Fairfield lassies, 52-17. The Fairfield team put up stiff opposition in the first half but found the smooth working apple-pickers too powerful. At half time the score was 30-15.

3 Women Pale as Colonel Testifies About Kidnapping

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 5 (AP).—Three women paled during testimony of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh Friday.

They were Mrs. Anna Hauptmann, the defendant's wife; Betty Gow, the kidnapped baby's nurse, and Mrs. Elsie Whately, widow of the Lindbergh butler.

Mrs. Hauptmann's deeply lined face turned a shade whiter when Colonel Lindbergh identified her husband's voice as the one he heard in the Bronx cemetery.

Mrs. Whately jumped involuntarily when Edward J. Reilly, Hauptmann's lawyer, after mentioning Violet Sharpe, asked Colonel Lindbergh:

"Did you ever know she was in the habit of going out with Whately?"

Her hands separated, raised swiftly several inches from her lap, Lindbergh said "no" and Reilly pressed "what they did in their off moments, you don't know much about."

Betty Gow gave her an anxious look, and Mrs. Whately whispered a few words to the baby's former nurse.

The chin of the young Scottish nurse lifted defiantly, then Reilly queried Lindbergh as to whether she knew she had a brother in trouble.
